The budget includes a €30m top up to help develop energy projects in the West Bank. The EU aid office has stated that the project will help the Palestinian economy, as well as improve the living conditions of farmers, fishermen, herders and shepherds in the West Bank. The project will help facilitate the Palestinian agrarian economy by establishing a solid and predictable irrigation system that, in turn, will enable a viable commercial agriculture within the West Bank. The project will improve the quality of life for farm families by providing desalination and agriculture-related services through a project headquarters and farms in the Awarta Area, a region south of Bethlehem. The project also aims at developing the nearby Jenin industrial zone. The EU will also fund a computerised irrigation system in the Aida governorate in the centre of the West
