Metronome supports MIDI files with variable tempo in the following ranges:Q: D3 - how to apply a gridlayout to a variable number of domains? I have a set of graphic domains each one representing a different dataset. I would like to display them, in d3 v4, in a parallel way, in a gridlayout, as shown in the following example (domain size and domain names were used for illustrative purposes, they are not actually part of the problem). I have tried to apply a gridlayout to the graph's svg element and call the layout function several times, using an array with the domain ids as index, in the following way: var domains = [{id:1, name:"dataset1"}, {id:2, name:"dataset2"}]; var svg = d3.select("body").selectAll("svg").data(domains).enter().append("svg"); var domainsLayout = function(domains) { var g = svg.selectAll(".g") .data(domains) .enter() .append("g") .attr("class", "g"); domainsLayout(domains); var grid
