The present invention relates to a ceramic honeycomb filter used for removing particulate harmful matter contained in exhaust gas from a diesel engine mounted on a vehicle or the like and more particularly to a structure of a ceramic honeycomb filter including a honeycomb structure having through holes formed in its partition walls and a method of manufacturing the ceramic honeycomb filter. Usually, exhaust gas discharged from a diesel engine mounted on a vehicle or the like contains particulate harmful matter called "PM". In order to remove PM from exhaust gas, it has been proposed to use a catalyst carrier coated with a metal such as platinum for causing the combustion of exhaust gas or to use a honeycomb filter of a ceramic material. It is needless to say that the employment of a ceramic honeycomb filter instead of the catalyst carrier can more effectively remove particulate harmful matter from exhaust gas. The ceramic honeycomb filter is ordinarily produced by firing a composition (slurry) having a predetermined composition as raw material and then shaping the resulting fired body into a desired shape. In general, the ceramic honeycomb filter having a honeycomb structure comprises a plurality of cells formed by partition walls each having a square pillar shape as an inlet side and a square pillar shape as an outlet side, each cell having communicated both inlet and outlet side passages. Further, through holes through which exhaust gas can flow are formed at predetermined portions of the partition walls. Also, the partition walls form through holes by being bonded to each other at predetermined portions. The through holes formed at the partition walls are arranged so that the portion where the partition walls are bonded to each other constitute a honeycomb structure and a central portion of the honeycomb structure is communicated with the inlet side passages. Further, the central portion of the honeycomb structure is communicated with the outlet side passages. In manufacturing a ceramic honeycomb filter, a green composition prepared by mixing a predetermined amount of inorganic powder with organic binder and water is applied in the form of paste to a honeycomb molding die (die) having through holes formed therein. Then, a sheet of paper is attached to the thus applied composition layer as a support layer, and a drying step is carried out. Subsequently, a firing step is carried out to fire the applied layer in a heating furnace to thereby manufacture a dried and fired honeycomb molding. The dried and fired honeycomb molding is peeled from the die and after the peeling step, the through holes at the partition walls are connected so that exhaust gas can flow through the

Q: Unable to load DLL 'google_ads_json_extractor' There is an error that occur when I want to install google_ads_json_extractor and when I type the command install.packages("google_ads_json_extractor") I got this error: Loading required package: google Error in get(x, attr(x, "package"), parent =.packages(x), inherits = FALSE) : Unable to find a library to load the requested DLL 'google_ads_json_extractor' What should I do? A: As suggested in other posts, this library is provided as a binary, here is an example for Windows: Simply enter the directory in the script and run the following command: R CMD INSTALL google_ads_json_extractor-1.6.0-1-windows-amd64.zip You need a few more libraries to be loaded: I2C fftw3 blas (as you see above) Warning: Use this solution only as a last attempt as it requires a lot of manual steps. At this point, you may want to reconsider what you are doing. Reactions of cobalt with Criegee intermediates. Cobalt(iii) salts were found to react with Criegee intermediates, including propargyl alcohol (6) and acetonitrile and beta-O-C_6H_6 (15), with formation of new organometallic products $[Co(eta(5)-C(5)R(5))(2)][B(C(6)F(5))(4)]$ (R = (i)Pr, 1a, (t)Bu, 1b). The compounds were characterized by spectroscopic methods including NMR, IR, and UV/Vis spectroscopy. The cobalt complexes are air-stable. These reactions are of importance, as cobalt is ubiquitous as well as interesting, where it exhibits
