I searched for solution but found nothing helpful so far. Here is a screen shot of the layout I am currently working with: My requirement is to put the Search control in the middle and have this space filled by the navigation background which is a gradient image. I tried with a Grid but it does not work because the Search control occupies the entire space. Also, the progress bar of the Splash screen is visible even when the application is not running. I am working on the WPF and have a very basic idea of programming. Any help would be greatly appreciated. A: You can use resources. In the.xaml add the control: Add the resource: In the.xaml.cs add the style:
