Bonus Offer for AllPockets Clients I have been trying to register with AllPockets for some time, and was actually recently denied because of having a third-party service extension. I'm so used to using it I actually can't even think of what I used last night, and the web developers don't seem to be working on it for some reason. Anyway, I'll check out AllPockets again tonight and see if this is the issue with them and if I can register. Bump2, I was wondering about that too, but didn't get the message in my inbox until this morning, which was too late for it to be that. It's a very neat app, especially for doing travel-related stuff, but they still seem to be having difficulties. I'd like to think they would have fixed it by now, but I suspect they'll be plagued with the same problems for a while. I don't do it often enough to warrant this, but I probably will be soon. I haven't had much time to play with it, but I am using it for the same reasons as you have been. It's an app that can be used for keeping your family life (and yours) in order. I have been using the Family Locator to help keep track of where I am at, but I thought an app that actually uses it as the primary focus for the app would be perfect for that situation. I like the idea behind it, too. My father is an avid geocacher (no, that is not a typo). I suppose that's where I've first started using the app. If you haven't tried it, I would suggest you do so, as it's perfect for the job. It's not just a "lonely heart" app, too. It gives the user the ability to keep other family members well aware of your whereabouts. Even if you do go alone, there is a companion feature that will make you more easy to locate (you just give it a cell number). One thing I have been playing with is the ability to connect to other family members using the app. It works with friends and family, too. I even have one friend who was having a really difficult time with her husband who was a drug addict, and it was the application that finally enabled her to see how close they were. I think the true value of this application is how it actually
