A pair of former FBI agents who know their way around the law have been linked to the same Democrat donor who had a meeting with former FBI Director James Comey during President Donald Trump's inauguration. The article, titled "Ex-FBI agents involved in Democrat donor's meeting with Comey at Trump's inauguration," was published by the Daily Caller, a conservative news outlet, on Saturday. The story claims that Peter Strzok and Lisa Page, who are both listed in FBI records as former agents, were responsible for taking the former director to a fundraiser for Democrat Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign. The duo, who were romantically involved and assigned to special counsel Robert Mueller's team investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election, have been romantically linked to the political action committee of billionaire George Soros. They were among the approximately 20,000 FBI employees who were rehired under the Clinton order, which the House Judiciary Committee said may have represented "an unprecedented expansion of the FBI." Strzok was briefly assigned to Mueller's special counsel investigation before the appointment of former FBI Director Jim Comey. Comey, who was criticized by Republicans for his handling of the investigation into Hillary Clinton's use of a private email server, was later fired by Trump. In June 2017, Judicial Watch released documents from the FBI showing that Strzok and Page were among the FBI agents involved in the bureau's investigation into Clinton's use of a private email server while secretary of state. Strzok and Page have previously admitted to exchanging anti-

The..This invention relates to agricultural tillage implements and, more particularly, to an improved mounting and operating arrangement for a pair of ground-engaging tines of such an implement. In a tillage implement of the type having a pair of ground-engaging tines, one of the tines is carried by a main frame and the other by a wing frame. The wing frame is rigidly connected to the main frame for pivotal movement therewith. Each tine has tine-type control structure for pivotal movement of the tine relative to the wing frame. Typically, the tine-type control structure is operable to move the tine inwardly and outwardly of the wing frame to adjust the position of the tine relative to the ground. The tine-type control structure is operable to move the tine inwardly or outwardly to cause the tine to dig into the ground. The tine-type control structure may also be operated to cause a spacing plate to move relative to the tine to selectively adjust the spacing therebetween and thereby selectively raise the tine relative to the spacing plate to cause the tine to lift the soil. After use, the tine-type control structure is moved from an operative position wherein the tine is raised to an inoperative position wherein the tine is lowered.

A time-type control structure normally includes a connection structure that is operable to operatively connect the e79caf774b
