Now is the time to reassess your role in the world 3:00 pm Tue January 7, 2014 We are Reimagining Service If you are in business, you are spending money. If you are a parent, you are paying for things for your kids. If you work, you are paying for benefits to attract and keep workers. All those things are a big part of what makes America run. The national economy has been in recession for more than a year and, to date, 25 million Americans have lost their jobs. That has meant cuts in government services as well as a gut-check for the people who employ them. On Tuesday, American Express will release the 2014 edition of its National Customer Satisfaction Index, which measures customer satisfaction nationwide with retailers. We know from this experience that some sectors of the economy are doing better than others, but we thought it would be great if you could also help us to see which sectors and workers we should be thinking about. Help us conduct this research, and you can do so by taking this short survey: A survey like this is not going to tell you whether to buy food or a car. But it will help us to see what industries people are in right now and what changes might be coming in those industries. If you take the survey, we are going to ask you which industries you work in. Because we are interested in your lives as well as the economy, we're also going to ask some questions about you, like your age and ethnicity. We will also use this data to see which workers are cutting their hours or quitting their jobs. If we discover a trend that seems surprising, we will share it with you. This will be the first season that American Express is providing d0c515b9f4
