The invention relates to a method of manufacturing a silicon germanium or germanium-silicon semiconductor material. Such semiconductor materials are used, for example, as low temperature detectors. Semiconductor materials with a germanium concentration between 12.5 and 40% have already been used for the formation of such low temperature detectors. However, the lattice structure of germanium is relatively unstable as compared to silicon and germanium forms, under certain conditions, semiconductor materials having a non-stoichiometric structure. This is the case, for example, when germanium is present in the "Ge.sub.x Si.sub.y " structure where  $x > 0$  and  $y < 0$ . Another problem which arises is that the low temperature detectors made from germanium alloys have a relatively low efficiency. Google's (GOOG, Tech30) online ad business grew at its best since 2009, as more consumers move online and advertisers increasingly spend on mobile. However, the gains came despite lukewarm demand for tablet ads, as well as a surprise quarterly downturn in display ad revenues. Meanwhile, the company's overall advertising business grew 5 percent year-over-year, as the search giant said mobile accounted for 70 percent of its ad revenues. Google's ad revenue grew by 20.7 percent, while search accounted for 76 percent. The gains were spread across all major regions, with Latin America rising by 15.1 percent, the Asia Pacific region growing 13.6 percent, and the emerging markets segment up 14.8 percent. However, Google did not break down its mobile and desktop ad revenue, saying that "we see a lot of cross-device activity, but because of the small size of our mobile business, we don't break it out further." Tablet ads are becoming a huge problem Google's advertising growth continued to outpace the overall rise in the Internet economy, with the company's ad growth in the past three quarters more than matching that of 2014. However, the company's sixth-quarter revenue of d0c515b9f4

Nero Vision Express Version 3.1.0.7 is one of the best video converting software nowadays. It is developed with. DOS .The present invention relates to chiral (meth)acrylate monomers and polymerizable mixtures thereof. The invention is also directed to films and coating compositions made with these monomers. Chiral monomers can be used to make films and coatings with high optical anisotropy. Chiral monomers have a chiral stereochemistry at the stereogenic center and a counter-clockwise rotation (i.e., right-handed or left-handed rotation) when the main chain is observed from one end of the molecule to the other. A number of chiral ethylenically unsaturated monomers have been described in the art, such as those with an allyl or vinyl group. The use of polycarbonate polymers in the making of optical films is known. However, these polymers often contain residual chromophores and other impurities that can leach out during extrusion, causing haze in the optical film. To overcome this problem, a leaching inhibitor is often added to polycarbonate polymers. Typically, the leaching inhibitor is added to the reaction mixture during polymerization. See, e.g., U.S. Pat. The invention also provides a polymer
