Ischemic cardiomyopathy is characterized by the absence of coronary heart disease or by stenosis of the coronary arteries, but other abnormalities of the coronary circulation may be present. The time course of this cardiomyopathy varies. Under the influence of heavy physical or psychic stress, the first symptoms appear only hours or even minutes later. The type of myocardial hypertrophy is variable: "ischemic" myocardial hypertrophy without coronary heart disease is generally rare in the adult, whereas signs of coronary heart disease (dilatation, coronary atherosclerosis, arteriosclerosis) are frequently encountered in autopsy material from older patients. The etiology of the arteriosclerotic process is not known. A role for infections, autoimmune reactions and ischemic damage to the heart is discussed. Hypertensive heart disease is discussed as a risk factor. Patients with ischemic cardiomyopathy, especially patients with myocardial infarctions without coronary heart disease, often die suddenly, and sudden death is therefore the most frequent cause of death.« Nous partons avec un nombre important d'amendements et j'espère que le Parlement soutiendra notre proposition », a déclaré le nouveau ministre de la santé, Mario Campos. Le gouvernement envisageait déjà une amélioration de la qualité de l'accès à la pharmacovigilance, qui était sous-financée dans la réforme des finances publiques voulue par le président
