.Q: How do you set a method of your new, created object? So I want to know how do you set the 'cover' method in my mail.rb file. def cover gvars["avatar"].url end What is this line of code doing and what am I required to set? A: A method is just an ordinary Ruby statement. You can create a new method any time you want. It's useful to place it in a method in case you want to use it elsewhere. For example, if you were working on an API, you might have some kind of resource object that represents the class of a resource (models are examples). Your new methods might be in a module and then you could use them from there: module Methods def sum return 42 end def divide(n) return 1 / n end end class A include Methods end a = A.new a.sum # 42 a.divide(4) # 0.25 Seroepidemiologic study of Pasteurella multocida infection in dogs and cats in Japan. We investigated the incidence of serologically proven infection of Pasteurella multocida in dogs and cats in Japan. Prevalence of toxemia and coughing in dogs and cats was higher than in other countries. The rate of P. multocida infections, as judged by the antibody titer to P. multocida, was higher in cats and dogs. There were significant differences in the rate of P. multocida infection in dogs and cats between regions and groups. Infection with P. multocida is common in Japan, and their geographical patterns vary by breed and status. Guayabera The guayabera () is a short, button-down white shirt that originated in Cuba as part of the civilian traditional costume. It is a short-sleeved, buttoned white shirt worn with a long, draped, lightweight jacket, called a guayabera jacket. It originated from a type of short-sleeved dressing jacket or bomber-style coat, worn by bomber pilots in the 20th century. The guayabera is similar to the corresponding shirt and jacket known in North America as the short-sleeved button-down
