No Ratings YetUS Strike on Syrian Airbase Kills Top Syrian Intelligence Official A U.S. airstrike Wednesday on a Syrian government airbase just a day after President Trump declared victory in Syria and ordered troops back home has killed an elite intelligence chief and four other people, including Syrian rebels fighting alongside the U.S., a monitor said. The airstrike in central Syria's Homs province killed at least seven people, including the head of the local shabiha, or progovernment militia. Syrian government forces celebrated the death in social media posts, with the state-run news agency SANA calling the airbase "a center of terrorism and the gang of murder." It was unclear what prompted the U.S. strike, but it comes just days after Trump met with Russian President Vladimir Putin to discuss the situation in Syria. Speaking before his departure for the G7 summit in Quebec, Trump said on Tuesday that American troops would remain in Syria until the Islamic State group is eradicated. He said they will "watch over the surrounding area, primarily." The announcement came just hours after hundreds of Syrian troops backed by Russian warplanes launched a renewed assault on the last major IS-held area in eastern Syria, triggering ferocious clashes that killed scores of fighters and prompted airstrikes from the U.S. "If he stays there long enough they'll probably be shocked." — Andrew Kaczynski, Reuters According to the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, the U.S. airstrike early Wednesday hit a convoy of vehicles carrying the elite intelligence chief, the head of the shabiha and other officers. "It's devastating, to say the least," the monitoring group's head, Rami Abdel Rahman, told Al-Arabiya TV. "It's devastating, to say the least." "This may be a message in a bottle for the Syrian regime. c6a93da74d
